COURSE CODE, TITLES, AND DESCRIPTIONS

COURSE CODE/ TITLE	DESCRIPTION
LALS 510 Listening and Speaking in the Language Classroom	This course explores a range of principles and practices for the teaching and learning of listening and speaking skills in the second/foreign language classroom. Drawing on evidence from classroom research, the course explores evidence-based proposals for addressing the practical issues that teachers face in planning and implementing instruction. Emphasis is given to the design of classroom materials, activities and lessons, and principles for managing classroom learning.
LALS 511 Teaching Reading and Writing	Examination of the principles behind the effective teaching of reading and writing skills in another language and the application of these principles in the preparation and use of teaching materials.
LALS 512 Exploring Grammar Using Corpus Linguistics	An analysis and evaluation of diverse pedagogical interventions intended to facilitate grammar acquisition, with a view to helping practitioners optimise their design of course materials and classroom activities.
LALS 515 Language Curriculum Development	This course will enable students to critically assess current and historical claims about language curriculum development and employ context-specific evidence and relevant literature to support the assessment. It also enables students to identify and assess learning needs in a specific context, and propose ways to meet these needs to improve learning experience in that context. Students will be able to identify and analyse a curriculum problem in a specific context, propose a solution for this problem, and propose a procedure for evaluating the process and outcome of the solution.
LALS 519 Language and Learning in EMI and CLIL Contexts	This course examines the theories and practices of English Medium Instruction (EMI) and Content and Language Integrated Learning (CLIL) in multilingual contexts. It explores how content, language, cognition, and communication interact in learning through English, drawing on research in applied linguistics, SLA, classroom interaction, and multilingual pedagogies. Participants will examine key EMI and CLIL frameworks, including the 4Cs framework, classroom discourse, learner strategies, and assessment. The course also focuses on designing and evaluating CLIL lessons and materials, while encouraging reflection on professional and contextually responsive practices.
LALS 520 Second Language Acquisition	LALS 520 introduces course members to theories of second language acquisition. It explores linguistic, psychological, and educational factors that bear on the abilities of children and adults to understand and use second languages. The course emphasizes the application of SLA research to second language pedagogy.

COURSE CODE/ TITLE	DESCRIPTION
LALS 522 Teaching and Learning Vocabulary	The study of second language vocabulary learning and teaching, including factors that influence vocabulary learning, the roles of incidental acquisition and deliberate learning, how to select words for learning and how to assess vocabulary knowledge.
LALS 523 Assessment for Learning in the Language Classroom	The study of the theory and practice of language assessment, with particular reference to classroom learning and teaching. The course mainly focuses on classroom-based assessment for formative purposes.
LALS 525 Learner Autonomy and Learning Strategies	This course will enable students to critically examine the theories behind learner autonomy and learning strategies in language learning, as well as synthesise major research findings on learner autonomy and learning strategies and design their own studies. It also enables them to integrate theories and research into their own classroom teaching practice.
LALS 528 Classroom Research	The course focuses on the role of teachers as researcher who are seeking their classroom teaching/learning environment. It combines current reflective language teaching theory with the development of a hands-on action research plan.
LALS 529 Task-Based Language Teaching	Task-based language teaching (TBLT) has been extensively theorized and researched in recent decades and widely adopted in language teaching and learning internationally. Drawing on theoretical and classroom perspectives, this course explores task-based course design, teaching, and assessment. It considers the practicalities of adopting TBLT in contexts familiar to teachers on the course.
LALS 530 Teaching English as an International Language	The changing sociolinguistic landscape of English has led to a change in thinking in the Applied Linguistics discipline, calling for a critical re-assessment of ELT assumptions and practices that have been traditionally oriented toward native-English speakers' linguistic norms and practices. This course engages students in exploring the recent sociolinguistic development of the English language in various international contexts, and its implications for teaching English in today's globalising/globalised world.
LALS 582 30-point Research Project	The collection, analysis and interpretation of data relating to a research question arising from course work in the MLing, MTESOL or MAppLing programme, leading to a 12,000-word report. Permission of the Programme Director must be obtained before enrolling in this course.

Description of Modules

Module	Mode of delivery	Mode of Assessment
i) Introduction to TESOL	Blended	Continuous Assessment and Exam
ii) Teaching Digital Multiliteracies	Blended	Continuous Assessment and Exam
iii) Teaching Listening and Speaking	In-person	Continuous Assessment and Exam
iv) Teaching Reading and Writing	In-person	Continuous Assessment and Exam
v) Assessment in the Classroom Language	In-person	Continuous Assessment and Exam
vi) Language Curriculum Design and Implementation	In-person	Continuous Assessment and Exam

The sequence and mode of delivery of the modules are subject to change.

Broadly, the following topics will be covered in the modules:

i) Introduction to TESOL

This module provides foundational knowledge in Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL). It introduces key theories and principles that inform English language teaching across diverse contexts, with particular attention to how learners learn, process, and use language. The module aims to highlight the relationship between theory and practice, enabling course participants to apply these insights in real-world instructional settings. It also prepares participants to critically examine and evaluate different approaches to language teaching and learning, fostering a more informed and reflective understanding of pedagogical choices.

ii) Teaching Digital Multiliteracies

In a digital, multimodal world where meaning-making is key to communication, what core multiliteracies are essential for our ESOL learners? How should we systematically help them understand, analyze, evaluate, and create digital multimodal texts? How should we teach them to be critical and responsible consumers and producers of digital information, considering the massive proliferation of Generative AI? This module aims to address these questions and issues. It will equip course participants with the competencies and insights in teaching digital, AI, information, multimodal, and critical literacies in the ESOL classroom. Through contextualized projects and microteaching, course participants will develop a theoretical understanding of the core digital multiliteracies and gain the practical skills necessary to teach them in their specific contexts.

iii) Teaching Listening and Speaking

This module aims to develop course participants' understanding of the theoretical bases for teaching listening and speaking in TESOL contexts. It examines and explores various approaches to teaching listening and speaking. It familiarizes course participants with the teaching of sub-skills and strategies involved in listening and speaking. Course participants will be tasked to plan and carry out microteaching of listening and speaking lessons as part of the module assessment.

iv) Teaching Reading and Writing

This module deals with the principles, design, and procedures in teaching reading and writing in the EL classroom. The integration of theory and classroom practice will be achieved via sample lesson plans and micro-teaching sessions. Key theories of reading and writing and current approaches to teaching reading and writing will be explored and discussed vis-à-vis the course participants' teaching and learning contexts.

v) Assessment in the Language Classroom

This module is designed for language teachers and assessors who seek to understand and apply the principles and practices of formative and summative assessment within their institutional contexts. It focuses on integrating formative assessment into everyday teaching and on designing and evaluating language tests for both face-to-face and online environments. The course also embeds the principled use of Generative Artificial Intelligence (GenAI) to support the design, implementation, and evaluation of assessment practices in language education.

vi) Language Curriculum Design and Implementation

This module combines current language curriculum theory and curriculum design approaches with hands-on application. It examines the types of language syllabus featured in textbooks and course materials used by teachers and their students in different TESOL contexts. Course participants will be familiarized with key concepts and approaches related to language syllabus and course design, as well as key challenges and issues concerning language curriculum planning and implementation. Course participants will be tasked to design a proposed course or a unit of study for a targeted group of learners as part of the module assessment. The course/unit of study proposal will include clearly defined course objectives and learning outcomes, the course/unit of study outline, structure and suggested content, and a description of the principles that guide the content and sequencing, the format and presentation, and the monitoring and assessment of the course/unit of study.
